Some new Foetus

Wow...love the packaging of this one...gonna have to bite the bullet and spend $30+US for a 45...gotta:

The collaboration between JG Thirlwell and Fred Bigot (of Electronicat) is now finally released by the French art/music label Optical Sound.

Under the name Hydroze Plus, the release is a clear vinyl ten inch EP. The EP consists of the songs "Overcoat" and "Calm Calm", as well as JG's remix of "Overcoat", which is entitled "Epi-Dose", and Bigot's remix of "Calm Calm", which is entitled "Belladonna".

The packaging, designed by JG Thirlwell, is particularly unusual and unique. It is designed to resemble an anatomical text book with transparent layers. The eyeball appears on the label which is overlaid by a transparent plastic sheet which is screenprinted with the face's musculature. The card behind the transparent record depicts the skull, and it is wrapped around with a flap that contains the credit.

This is an extremely limited vinyl-only release only available from Optical Sound. 500 copies only.

It will be available digitally from Ectopic Ents at a later date.
